Slight decline in trading liquidity

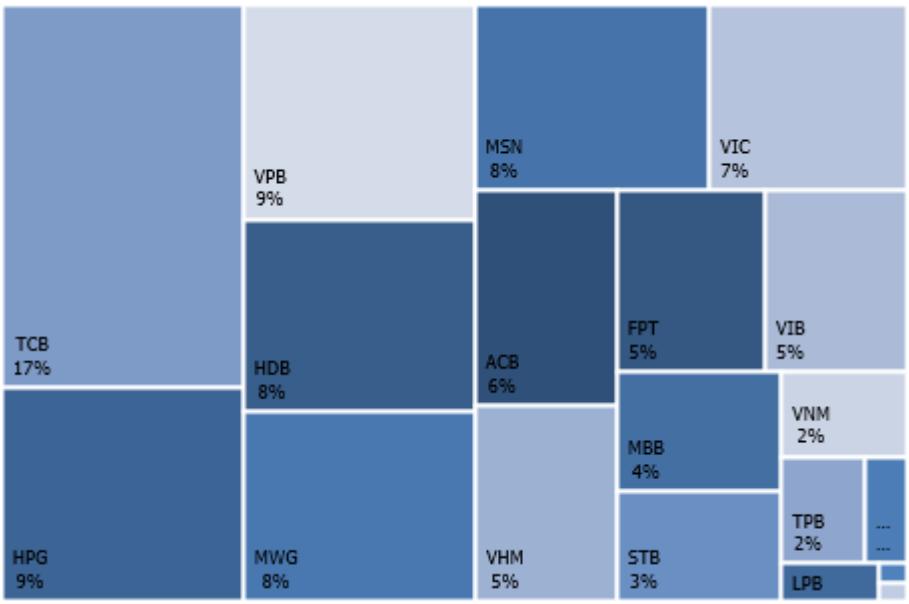

In 44W26, market liquidity edged lower. Specifically, the trading volume and value of the CWs market recorded 312.4 million CWs/VN216.0bn, down 6.9%/ 5.0%, respectively, WoW.

With trading value by an underlying asset, the CWs that TCB and HPG as the underlying asset attracted the most trading interest, recording 26% of total trading volume. Following them were warrants based on stocks such as VPB, HDB, MWG, MSN, and VIC.

During the week, sentiment in the covered warrant market remained relatively cautious. Meanwhile, the underlying market moved in tandem, with the VNIndex declining 1.8% over the week. This suggested that negative sentiment in the underlying market had partly spilled over into covered warrants, as corrections in underlying stocks may have dampened expectations of further price gains and weighed on demand for covered warrants. Overall, investors remained cautious, with risk appetite yet to show meaningful improvement.

Note: The covered warrant market is commonly used for short-term trading which means volatility level is extremely high. Notably, covered warrant has the positive correllation with its underlying, the short-term fluctuation in the underlying price could lead to the big move in covered warrant.
